Local: Palácio do Vimioso, sala 205 Data: 26 e 27.Novembro.2013

Link: http://www.cidehus.uevora.pt/index agenda.htm

Esta iniciativa do CIDEHUS-UE, coordenada por Fernando Martins, pretende fazer uma reflexão sobre a história da guerra colonial tendo em conta dois eixos de análise. Em primeiro lugar, destaca o facto de aquele acontecimento não respeitar apenas a temas de história-político militar. Em segundo lugar, revisita e revê metodologias de análise e conclusões sobre aspectos parciais e globais daquele que foi o mais importante acontecimento da história do mundo lusófono no terceiro quartel do século XX.

1) The Global South and/in the Global North: Interdisciplinary Investigations

This special issue of The Global South encourages striated readings of place that challenge nation-based models of the Global North (First World) and the Global South (Third World) by suggesting that one may exist within the other. The political clout of a nation, its fiscal soundness or disrepair, its general attitude toward the value of education and the accessibility of health care, obviously do not consistently characterize the experiences of all of its residents, and this issue explores that gap. We especially encourage essays that focus on the blurring of political demarcations of space, or essays that transgress disciplinary lines. Interdisciplinary and coauthored studies are thus particularly welcome. Questions guiding the issue's theme include but are not limited to these:

* Where do we find evidence of the Global South within the Global North, particularly within countries resolutely classified as First World? Might we find the Global North similarly pocketed into the Global South?

- * What might be gained by revamping traditional nation-based classifications of how power is allotted? What are the pragmatic advantages and pitfalls to reading place in a new more granular way?
- * What case studies most clearly illustrate the complications in traditional Global South/Global North hierarchies?
- * What might be revealed by situating seemingly disparate locations along a spectrum that accounts for the distribution of power as fundamentally connected to the characteristics of space?
- * How is interdisciplinary study particularly well-suited to grapple with the exigencies of place-based study? What disciplines converge most productively via the study of both real and imagined places?

2) Place, Memory, Affect is a new interdisciplinary book series interested in proposals that seek to extend and deepen debates around the intersections of place, memory and affect in innovative and challenging ways. Above all, through such explorations the series will look for trends, key concepts and theories being discussed across the disciplines and engage with redefining notions of place and space, such as affect, memory, psychogeography, belonging, the ordinary / everyday, phenomenology, borders and thirdspace. We wish the series to forge an agenda for new approaches to the edgy relations of people and place within the transnational global cultures of the twenty-first century and beyond.

As a series, it might ask such questions as:-

- How place is re-imagined and re-experienced through different relations, both materially and through memory, sensation, affect, dream, imagination;
- How cultural, political and economic forces are experienced by and inscribed upon and through bodies as affect and emotion;
- How reconsiderations of place, memory and affect might interrupt entrenched views and structures of thought and power;
- How theoretical and experiential uses of place expand and challenge perception and creativity.

The vision for the series shares something with US writer Terry Tempest Williams: "To see the world whole. To feel ourselves interconnected and interrelated. To explore the issues of our time through the kaleidoscopic vision of many disciplines, not just one."

To propose a book for this series please complete the book proposal form available at http://www.rowmaninternational.com/working-with-authors/submitting-a-proposal

Please send proposals to Professor Neil Campbell n.campbell@derby.ac.uk and Dr Christine Berberich at Christine.Berberich@port.ac.uk marking your email Place, Memory, Affect Book Proposal

3) The Open Inquiry Archive has just launched a new review section and is seeking reviews (see: http://openinquiryarchive.net/review-section/).

In addition to traditional reviews, our goal is to provide longer reviews that delve into thematic and interdisciplinary issues in depth. All reviews are thoroughly vetted and edited in consultation with one or more of the OIA Review Editors. Please contact the editors if you are interested in proposing a review (see contact information).

Open Inquiry Archive is an independent online project aimed at publishing scholarly occasional papers, working papers, and position papers on topics related to culture, broadly construed.

Bolsas / Estágios / Emprego Científico:

1) ASSISTANT PROFESSOR. The Departments of Geography and Anthropology at the University of Georgia invite applications for a joint-appointment tenure-track assistant professor position for Fall 2014. A Ph.D. in anthropology, geography or other related area is required. We seek an individual engaging in interdisciplinary studies of the long-term relation between human activities and landscapes during the late Quaternary, with a particular strength in one or more of the areas of biogeography, environmental archaeology, geoarchaeology, geomorphology, and/or paleoecology. The individual would be expected to foster a strong orientation to field-based research and an analytical approach to evidence. A commitment to graduate and undergraduate instruction is essential, and the expected teaching load is four courses per year. The successful candidate will have a solid record or potential for publishing and obtaining external funding, and have the ability to teach required and specialty courses at the undergraduate and graduate levels. Research and teaching should complement and enhance existing strengths in the Departments of Anthropology and

Geography, yet also engage students and faculty from other relevant units and leverage existing strengths and resources associated with the University of Georgia.

Georgia is well known for its quality of life in regard to both outdoor and urban activities (www.exploregeorgia.org). UGA is a land and sea grant institution located in Athens, 70 miles northeast of Atlanta, the state capital (www.visitathensga.com; www.uga.edu).

The Franklin College of Arts and Sciences, its many units, and the University of Georgia are committed to increasing the diversity of its faculty and students, and sustaining a work and learning environment that is inclusive. Women, minorities, and persons with disabilities are encouraged to apply. The University is an EEO/ADA/AA institution. Faculty members are expected to support the college's goals of creating and sustaining a diverse and inclusive learning environment.

Candidates should apply at https://www.franklin.uga.edu/jobs/ where you will upload curriculum vitae, a statement of research and teaching interests, two representative articles, and contact information for three referees. Inquiries about the position should be directed to paleo@uga.edu. Review of applications will begin on January 6, 2014 and continue until the position is filled.
